

From first glance, we find a seated woman. She's a wealthy landowner that has just ended her week-long fashion tour in London. While on a flight home, she got a call from someone she hasn't heard from in the last twenty years – her sister. The call shocked her to her core, that also left her silent the entire trip back. Landing at the airport, she immediately makes her way towards the car assigned to her and her driver standing about.

She remains silent the entire trip back to her family's estate. On the way, her phone constantly blows up with messages and calls from other family members – but she remains to herself. Not a single call or message is answered. Her driver tries to make small talk, but quickly stops as he finds that she's not in the mood to have a conversation. An hour goes by before finally arriving at the estate. She doesn't even wait for the driver to open her door before taking off inside. She slams the door shut which echoes around the entire house. She drops her bag as she begins to make her way upstairs.

While on the fourth step, her escape is abruptly ended. Turning back towards the front door, she finds her driver entering the house. He explains to her that she is needed in her grandfather's study. The woman remains silent, exhaling sharply from irritation. The driver picks up her bag and hands it to her. She finally walks back down the stairs and approaches the driver, taking her bag from him. He then begins to escort her to her grandfather's study. Once there, the doors are opened simultaneously to view the enormous room that has been in the family for centuries. She enters slowly, looking around as if she hasn't seen the place in decades.

Her grandfather's lawyer catches her attention. He soon gets her to sit as he prepares to disclose the will he left for her and her only. The entire statement keeps the woman silent. She's both in awe and in complete shock at what the lawyer is telling her. He mentions the fact that she has a 200 million dollar trust that he left for her. But she's quick to learn that the fortune wasn't her only gain. Her grandfather had a crap ton of enemies from his lifestyle of money laundering. So, along with the money, came a very skilled and ruthless bodyguard that will stand by her side until the end of time.

Throughout the reading of the will, the woman remained completely silent. She soon took her hat off as words were prepared to finally escape her mouth. She questioned the purpose for her bodyguard as he stood directly beside her the entire time. Without knowing the probable cause for him, the lawyer retrieves a note from his briefcase and hands it to her. She reads it privately:

“If you're reading this, my time has come to an end. But my life choices have not. Some shitty adventures, local beauties and exponential greed took charge of the last fifty years of my life. And in that time, I managed to rack up more enemies than your entire trust fund. Frankly, I've met a few people who have just what it takes to keep you protected. His name is Shawn. By now, the news of my death would have spread like wildfire. But do not be alarmed. Shawn has been tasked with escorting you to my secluded island home in the Philippines. Go with him and do not look back.”

The woman folds the note back up and sets it back on the table in front of her. She keeps her attention facing front as she remains distraught and shocked at everything that befell her. Shawn remains standing alongside her – ready to get the task complete and her safe.